

Systems Thinking for Leaders

Workshop information

Navigate complexity and lead across boundaries

Today's leadership challenges rarely fit within neat silos. Leaders must think systemically, considering interconnected factors and working across boundaries to drive change.

This workshop equips participants with the tools to understand, analyse, and lead within complex systems. Part of the Collaborating and Influencing practices of the practive8 model, this three-hour session helps leaders gain clarity in complexity and make decisions that create long-term impact.

Why systems thinking matters

In an interconnected world, leaders need to see the bigger picture and understand how different elements influence each other. Leaders who think systemically can:

- Break down silos and foster collaboration across teams and organisations.
- Identify root causes of challenges rather than treating symptoms.
- Drive sustainable solutions by considering long-term consequences.

As Peter Senge, author of The Fifth Discipline, said, "Today's problems come from yesterday's solutions."

Workshop features for maximum impact

- 1. Understanding systems dynamics
Learn tools to map systems, identify feedback loops, and recognise leverage points.
- 2. Collaborative problem-solving
Practise tackling real-world challenges using systems thinking frameworks.
- 3. Prepare, practise, perfect
Includes pre-work (case studies and reflective activities) and post-workshop resources to embed learning.
- 4. Tailored to your organisation
A pre-session consultation ensures the workshop aligns with your organisation's unique systems challenges.

Who is this workshop for?

This workshop is ideal for senior leaders, project managers, and team leads navigating complexity and cross-functional collaboration. It's particularly valuable for those driving organisational change or managing diverse stakeholder groups.
